

WELCOME TO REO RESORT

REO Rafting & Yoga Resort is located in the Nlaka'pamux Territory, and Indigenous Peoples are native to the land of the Nahatlatch Valley. We have and always will value the relationship we have with our local Indigenous band and the importance of giving them the recognition they deserve. Preserving the Nahatlatch Valley is a principle that we strongly share, and we will continue to work hard to achieve this.

Our founder, Bryan Fogelman, was the first to go whitewater rafting (for recreational purposes) on many rivers in British Columbia before he fell in love with the Nahatlatch River. The exhilarating and continuous rapids paired with its beautiful jade green colour reeled him in. After one glance at the surrounding mountains and forests, he knew he had to share this love for the Nahatlatch Valley.

REO started as a couple of rafts and eventually grew into a stunning and unique river's edge resort. After crossing the Fraser River on a one-vehicle aerial car ferry via a pulley system, driving down the rugged unpaved logging road, and hiking down to a tiny cabin, Bryan met the previous owner of this land, Big Jack. In time, Bryan purchased this riverside property from him and began to build his dream into a reality.

REO's Glamping tents existed long before they became a trend, as guests who didn't have camping tents needed a place to sleep. The Glamping tents have now evolved to provide simple yet stylish comforts in an incredible setting overlooking the river. Our resort is the ideal place to practice yoga, get your adrenaline pumping, eat delicious food, and spend time in a remarkable natural environment.

Our mantra is to share a love of rivers and nature and create memories that will last a lifetime. We are grateful that you have chosen to spend your vacation with us.

Thank you for choosing REO Rafting & Yoga Resort.

Sincerely,
Bryan, Karen, and the REO team
Since 1983

MASSAGE THERAPY

Deep Tissue

A stronger pressure is used to release muscle tension and muscle spasms while increasing the oxygen supply to the muscle.

Relaxation

The main focus of a relaxation massage is to de-stress, calm and relax the mind and body. This treatment will usually involve flowing strokes and kneading, performed at your chosen pressure.

Thai

Also known as Thai yoga massage, this traditional therapy combines acupressure, Indian Ayurvedic principles, and assisted yoga postures. You'll be stretched and twisted into various positions to release tension/pressure.

Ayurvedic

This ancient Indian traditional oil massage aims to relax and harmonize the body as it frees the energy along the meridians and releases blockages. Through movements that recreate universal mysticism and the stimulation of acupressure points, this precise technique calms the body and mind, releases stress and helps balance sleeping patterns

Pre and Post Natal

Rather than lying face down, your treatment will be done with you laying on your side. Pillows will be given to help better support you and make you feel comfortable. The aim is to help you relax, de-stress, and address any areas of tension or pain.
